DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Applicant's election of Group I in the reply filed on 04/20/06 is acknowledged. Because applicant did not distinctly and specifically point out the supposed errors in the restriction requirement, the election has been treated as an election without traverse (MPEP § 818.03(a)).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claims 2 and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Regarding claim 2, the phrase "an effective portion of the coil" renders the claim indefinite. It is unclear of the portion of the coil being labeled as an effective portion. The rejection below is therefore based on the broadest possible interpretation.

Regarding claim 5, "the effective portion of the coil" lacks antecedent basis.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claims 1-4 and 6-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being unpatentable by Ikegame et al. (US Patent 6,373,811).

Regarding claim 1, Ikegame (figure 10B) is interpreted as disclosing an optical element drive mechanism comprising a movable portion 112e including at least an optical element having a reflecting surface (not shown), a support member 112d for supporting the movable portion rotatably with respect to a fixing member, and a drive mechanism including at least a coil 114g and a magnet 112f for driving the movable portion, wherein a pole surface of the magnet is substantially parallel to the reflecting surface of the movable portion (see figure).

Regarding claim 2, Ikegame (figure 10B) is interpreted as further disclosing that the magnetic field which is substantially in parallel with the reflecting surface of the movable portion functions on an effective portion of the coil.

Regarding claim 3, Ikegame (figure 10B) is interpreted as further disclosing a plurality of magnetic poles are provided on the pole surface of the magnet (see figure).

Regarding claim 4, Ikegame (figure 10B) is interpreted as further disclosing that the plurality of magnetic poles provided on the pole surface of the magnet are opposite to the movable portion (see figure).

Regarding claim 6, Ikegame (figure 10B) is interpreted as further disclosing that the coil 114g is attached to the movable portion 112e.

Regarding claim 7, Ikegame (figure 10B) is interpreted as further disclosing that the movable portion 112e comprises the reflecting surface (not shown) on a first side and the coil 114g on a second side.

Regarding claims 8-10, Ikegame is interpreted as disclosing all the claimed limitations except that the movable portion comprising an array of plurality of movable portions. However, positioning one movable portion next to another to create an array of plurality of movable portions to achieve multiple effect would have been an obvious modification to one of ordinary skill in the art. In addition, creating an integral support member for the plurality of movable portions and providing a magnet generated enough magnetic flux to drive the plurality of movable portions would have been obvious and within the knowledge of one skilled in the art. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide an array of plurality of the movable portions for the purpose of accommodating larger switching system.
